‘Potential for abuse is beyond troubling’

- G20 law may have resulted in more violations than witnessed: Report
- Grits plan to scrap ‘outdated’ Public Works Protection Act, minister says

BERNARD WEIL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The secret law passed by Ontario’s Liberal government surrounding police powers during the G20 summit in Toronto could have led to even more abuses than were witnessed, former chief justice Roy McMurtry concluded in a report released Thursday.

More than 1,100 people were arrested by some 20,000 police officers from across Canada who patrolled Toronto during the G20 weekend last June.

The public, and police, were both mistakenly left with the belief the law gave officers the authority to stop, search and detain anyone near the G20 security zone, and such searches took place across the city, well away from the fenced-in summit site.

“Individuals are not provided with sufficient guidance as to what behaviour a law prohibits. And those in charge of enforcing the law are not provided with clear guidance as to how to enforce it.”
FORMER CHIEF JUSTICE ROY MCMURTRY

McMurtry criticized the government for updating a Second World War law designed to protect public buildings like courthouses to give police additional powers, and then failing to tell the public.

“The Public Works Protection Act raises issues regarding the liberty and security of the person in providing for warrantless searches and stopping for identification,” McMurtry writes in the report. “(The) potential for abuse is beyond troubling, to say the least.”

McMurtry called the law “vague,” and warned a vague law can lead to “inconsistent and arbitrary” enforcement.

He also found the federal government, the RCMP and provincial police all said extra powers for police were not needed, but Toronto police Chief Bill Blair wanted extra authority for the G20 weekend and the province granted it.

Activist pleads guilty

Montreal activist Jaggi Singh has pleaded guilty to urging people to tear down a security fence during last year’s G20 summit.

Singh had been facing conspiracy charges, but they have been withdrawn by the Crown after he pleaded guilty to counselling to commit mischief over $5,000.

Singh is a community organizer with the Anti-Capitalist Convergence, as well as the group No One Is Illegal-Montreal.

Supporters say a ruling is expected June 12.

Man guilty on lesser charge in officer's killing

Family of York Region detective distraught over manslaughter verdict Widow sobs in court

Sobbing filled a Newmarket courtroom Thursday as a Scarborough man was found guilty of manslaughter for killing a York Region police officer by hitting him with a stolen car in 2007.

Sonja Plunkett, the widow of Det.-Const. Robert Plunkett, dropped her head into her hands and sobbed uncontrollably when she heard Nadeem Jiwa, 23, was found not guilty of first-degree murder.

Jiwa showed little emotion as he heard the verdict.

Officer Plunkett, a father of three, was working with a surveillance team investigating the theft of airbags from cars when he attempted to arrest Jiwa Aug. 2, 2007, on Ascot Cres. in Markham shortly before 5 a.m.

Court heard Jiwa accelerated a stolen Honda and fatally pinned Plunkett against a tree.

Sentencing is scheduled for June 21.

Plunkett's family avoided reporters after the verdict.

Jiwa's lawyer, Laurence Cohen, said: "While we're not happy with the manslaughter verdict, we're relieved that it's not a murder conviction."

During the five-week trial, Martin Lennon, a retired detective constable who worked with Plunkett on the surveillance squad, said Plunkett's death was emotionally devastating.

"After Plunk was killed, emotionally and physically, I fell to pieces," he testified.

Ex-officer says he had no axe to grind

A Toronto police officer who investigated Staff Insp. Steve Izzett for alleged misconduct denied a defence lawyer's suggestion Thursday that he had an axe to grind with senior officers.

Tony Smith, who has retired, acknowledged he was angry when no one investigated a complaint he once filed against Deputy Chief Keith Forde for making remarks he considered "racist in nature."

"There was no animus between me and Steve Izzett from my point of view," Smith said.

Smith said Izzett had "helped me out on more than one occasion."

Izzett, 47, has pleaded not guilty to nine counts of misconduct under the Police Services Act.

He is alleged to have engaged in "tyrannical or oppressive" behaviour and is accused of sexually harassing a female officer.

Guilty plea in rooming house stabbing

A man who detonated a homemade bomb strapped to his chest while under siege by police for stabbing his neighbour has pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

Harry Crombie, now 46, admitted to thrusting a knife into Ronald Koci, 47, multiple times as they struggled in a rooming house on April 30, 2008.

Crombie escaped to a separate rooming house where he lived next door, on Keele Street south of St. Clair Avenue West, prosecutor Elizabeth Moore told Ontario Superior Court Thursday.

As police surrounded him in his room during a 75-minute standoff, Crombie told them through his door that Koci was dead and where he had disposed of the knife.

He then triggered the homemade explosive device attached to his chest.

"But because of its poor quality there were only very minor burns and irritations to his body and a broken left thumb," Moore told Justice John McMahon.

Conflict erupts during advance poll in York Region

All Jean Lee wanted to do was help her husband Jack read the names on his ballot before voting.

But what the Markham couple ended up with were two $65 tickets for trespassing at the advance poll near their home. Jean also says her vote was "voided" by Elections Canada officials, who showed the couple the door.

Jean Lee, 63, alleges one official grabbed her by the arm and shouted at the seniors as they were being escorted out.

"His attitude was so unkind, yelling at us. I asked for his name to report him," a still-angry Lee said in an interview describing the Monday evening incident at a poll at Angus Glen Community Centre, which is in the hotly contested riding of Oak Ridges-Markham.

"That's no way to work with the public," Lee said, adding later: "Who do these people think they are?"

She says her 73-year-old husband had forgotten the name of the candidate he intended to vote for — it was Liberal candidate Lui Temelkovski, who is challenging incumbent Conservative MP Paul Calandra — and he was also having trouble reading the names.

When she went over to assist him, "they told me I can't discuss with my husband how to vote, that it's against the law," Jean Lee said.

The Elections Canada staffer grabbed her ballot and told her it will be voided. Her husband was able to cast his ballot.

International court to probe possible Canadian war crimes

- Parliamentary hearings into the case were shut down after Conservative MPs boycotted the proceedings
- Release of documents on hold due to the election

The International Criminal Court's chief prosecutor says he will investigate war-crime allegations against Canadians over the handling of Afghan detainees if Canada won't.

Prosecutor Luis Moreno-Ocampo says in a documentary soon to be aired on TVO that Canadian officials are not immune to prosecution if there is evidence that crimes were committed by handing over detainees to face torture.

When Toronto filmmaker Barry Stevens asked Moreno-Ocampo in his film, Prosecutor, if the ICC would pursue a country such as Canada over its role in Afghanistan, he replied:

"We'll check if there are crimes and also we'll check if a Canadian judge is doing a case or not ... if they don't, the court has to intervene. That's the rule, that's the system, one standard for everyone."

Some legal experts have suggested the Canadian government's dismissal of calls to launch a judicial probe into the allegations has left the door open for outside scrutiny.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Referred case

There are three ways in which a case is referred to the ICC — by a member country directly (both Afghanistan and Canada are members), at the behest of the UN Security Council (as is the case with Libya) or if the prosecutor initiates the investigation after determining the host country has failed to the job.

Mrs. Harper called an asset in latest WikiLeaks

Laureen Harper gets top grades in the latest dump of confidential WikiLeaks cables originating from the American Embassy in Ottawa.

"Extroverted and friendly, she is widely credited for 'softening' her more reserved husband's political image," says a message dispatched to Washington in early 2009 by Terry Breese, then second-in-command at the embassy.

"Described as personable, free-spirited and with considerable personal charm, Mrs. Harper is a pro at working a room, and many observers believe her to be more at ease in front of cameras and strangers than her husband."

The cable offers a potted biography of the prime minister's spouse, who has spent the current election campaign close by Stephen Harper's side.

Comic release

A rare attempt at humour appears in a December 2008 cable by Terry Breese that purports to reproduce the prime minister's Christmas wish list. Among the 12 imaginary entries:

- "Newfoundland Premier Danny Williams recants his Venezuelan/Che Guevara economic theories and gives free rights to Newfie water to AbitibiBowater in perpetuity, leading Maude Barlow to emigrate to Zimbabwe."
- The entry refers to the former premier's fight to keep proceeds from the province's mineral and oil resources in the province — and his spat with Harper that led the Conservative premier to campaign against Harper in the 2008 election.

Tornadoes tear apart 6 states

Officials say they received 137 tornado reports into Wednesday night Worst twisters in 40 years

Massive tornadoes tore a town-flattening streak across the southern U.S., killing at least 280 people in six states and forcing rescuers to carry some survivors out on makeshift stretchers of splintered debris.

Two of Alabama's major cities were among the places devastated by the deadliest twister outbreak in nearly 40 years.

As day broke Thursday, people in hard-hit areas surveyed obliterated homes and debris-strewn streets. Some told of deadly winds whipping through within seconds of weather alert broadcasts during the storms Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Relief plans

U.S. President Barack Obama will visit storm-ravaged Alabama today to meet with families and the governor to discuss disaster relief efforts.

"It happened so fast it was unbelievable," said Jerry Stewart, a 63-year-old retired firefighter who was picking through the remains of his son's wrecked home in a suburb of Birmingham.

"They said the storm was in Tuscaloosa and it would be here in 15 minutes. And before I knew it, it was here."

Bombing in Morocco hits tourist café

A massive terrorist bombing tore through a tourist café in the bustling heart of Marrakech's old quarter, killing at least 11 foreigners and three Moroccans in the country's deadliest attack in eight years.

At least 23 people were wounded in the Thursday blast a few minutes before noon in Djemaa el-Fna square, one of the top attractions in a country that depends heavily on tourism, Moroccan Interior Minister Taib Chergaoui said.

Government spokesman Khalid Naciri told The Associated Press it was too soon to lay blame for what he called a terrorist attack, but he noted that Morocco regularly dismantles cells linked to al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb and says it has disrupted several plots.

At least eight French citizens were being treated at Marrakech's main Tofail Hospital, along with one Canadian, a British citizen and three Moroccans, emergency room chief Hicham Nejmi said. Others were being treated at a military hospital and a handful in private clinics.

"There was a huge bang, and lots of smoke went up, there was debris raining down from the sky. Hundreds of people were running in panic, some towards the café, some away from the square. The whole front of the café is blown away," witness Andy Birnie, of north London, told the AP by telephone.

It's census time again

But long-form loss may hurt Canada, many fear

It's controversial, politically divisive and could have a lasting effect on how Canadians see their country.

And it's not Monday's election.

It's the census.

Missing this year are the detailed long-form questionnaires that have helped many corners of Canadian society plan for the future.

Many experts warn the loss of the mandatory long-form census — and its questions on education, employment and commuting habits — risks leaving Canadians in the dark about their changing lifestyles and trends.

It starts Monday

- The mandatory eight-question document will begin appearing in mailboxes of Canadian homes — some 15 million households in all — starting Monday.
- Within a few weeks, census workers will distribute 4.5 million "national household surveys." These voluntary surveys are meant to replace the mandatory long-form census documents mailed out in the past.

"That's my firm belief," said Ivan Fellegi, who served as chief statistician at Statistics Canada for 23 years.

"But more important than that, we will not only have less knowledge about ourselves, we will have the wrong knowledge about ourselves because we won't know what's right and what's wrong."

With no consultation, the Tories decided last summer to kill the long-form census.

Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff said a Grit government would bring back the long-form census.

NDP Leader Jack Layton also said the decision to cancel the long-form should be reversed.

Ex-Tory aide says he helped Sun Media, too

A former senior Harper aide says he worked both sides of the journalism-politics fence this past month, providing free corporate advice to Sun Media while being paid as a political strategist in the Conservative election campaign.

The Canadian Press has learned that Patrick Muttart, the former deputy chief of staff to Prime Minister Stephen Harper, gave unpaid advice to Sun Media in recent weeks as it prepared to launch its new television station.

Muttart was also on the Tory payroll as a consultant to the party's election war room until his abrupt departure this week.

He was forced to part ways with Harper's campaign after Sun Media owner Pierre Karl Peladeau accused him of allegedly supplying false information to the news organization.

Muttart was a key backroom player in Harper's two previous election victories and served as deputy chief of staff before leaving to join an American public affairs firm.

He returned to the Tory fold last month as a hired political consultant.

Yemen protests heat up after 12 killed

Opposition parties call killings of protesters a 'savage massacre'

Tens of thousands rallied across Yemen Thursday, denouncing the killing of 12 protesters the previous day in Sanaa and demanding the country's longtime ruler step down.

Demonstrators took to the streets to condemn Wednesday's brutal crackdown by forces loyal to President Ali Abdullah Saleh in Sanaa and several other Yemeni cities.

The violence drew a condemnation from the U.S. Embassy, which said in a statement it was distressed by the killings. It urged Yemenis to avoid "all provocative demonstrations, marches, and speeches in the coming days."

Saleh has clung to office despite near-daily protests calling for his ouster since early February.

Hundreds were wounded Wednesday when security forces backed by snipers fired on about 100,000 demonstrators.

Harper looks south for economic hope

PM stumps for border security within sight of U.S. soil ◐ Pits Tory restraint against NDP spending plans

Election 2011

Stephen Harper was in Canada's honeymoon capital Thursday to promote his government's latest effort to court the country's southern neighbour.

Campaigning in Niagara Falls, Harper said a Conservative government would press forward with the border security agreement he signed with U.S. President Barack Obama earlier this year.

The plan is designed to buttress border security while fostering trade and economic growth between the two countries.

Partnering up

The border agreement focuses on security, trade, job creation, integrated cross-border law enforcement and protecting infrastructure and cyberspace.

▶ Harper also says he will proceed with a new regulatory council that would reduce red tape for companies that do business in the U.S.

The deal "will help to strengthen and bolster our trade relationship in order to complete the economic recovery and create jobs," he said.

With Jack Layton and the NDP showing remarkable strength in the polls, Harper is taking full advantage, using their new political presence to illustrate the stark differences between a Conservative government and its rivals.

"The alternatives the opposition offers — symbolized most dramatically by the NDP — are enormous increases in government expenses, the raising of taxes, the raising of prices, which we know will have a devastating effect on consumers' pockets."

Pair plead guilty after girl held for 18 years

Victim relieved that couple confess to their crimes
Both defendants waive their right to appeal

▶ Nancy Garrido

A convicted sex offender and his wife have pleaded guilty to charges of kidnapping and raping a Northern California girl when she was 11 and holding her captive for nearly two decades.

Phillip Garrido, who fathered the two children of victim Jaycee Dugard, entered the plea in California Thursday under a surprise deal with prosecutors that calls for a sentence of more than 430 years to life.

His wife, Nancy Garrido, also pleaded guilty in a deal that calls for 36 years to life.

Dugard was snatched from her family's South Lake Tahoe street in 1991.

The plea deals will spare Dugard, now 30, and her two daughters, aged 13 and 16, from having to testify.

Saskatchewan blamed for floods

Drenched western Manitoba will have to grin and bear it. Officials say it may be several months before flood waters recede. And the blame, they say, lies in Saskatchewan. It has been giving Manitoba "its fair share of water," says Steve Topping. Almost 2,000 people have had to leave their homes. A little more than 60 provincial highways have been affected and 600 municipal roads are closed.

Syrian army units fighting each other

May be sign president is losing support of military

Syrian army units have clashed with each other following President Bashar Assad's orders to crack down on protesters in Daraa, a besieged city at the heart of the uprising, witnesses and human rights groups said yesterday.

More than 450 people have been killed across Syria — about 100 in Daraa alone — and hundreds detained since the popular revolt against Assad began in mid-March, according to human rights groups.

While the troops' infighting in Daraa does not indicate any decisive splits in the military, it is significant because Assad's army has always been the regime's fiercest defender.

It is the latest sign that cracks — however small — are developing in Assad's base of support that would have been unimaginable just weeks ago. About 200 mostly low-level members of Syria's ruling Baath Party have resigned over Assad's brutal crackdown.

U.S. to reassess aid to Palestinians

Could yank support if Hamas joins government

The Obama administration said Thursday it would reassess aid to Palestinians if the militant group Hamas should join the U.S.-backed Palestinian government, with several lawmakers already clamouring for funding to be cut off.

U.S. State Department spokeswoman Heide Bronke Fulton said the U.S. was continuing its assistance programs for now, while seeking more information on the emerging alliance between President Mahmoud Abbas' pro-Western Fatah party, which governs in the West Bank, and its rival, Hamas, which controls the Gaza Strip.

The two Palestinian groups said this week they have reached a tentative deal to end a four-year rift, but the U.S. considers Hamas a terrorist group, making it ineligible for direct American aid. The U.S. planned to provide more than $500 million in aid next year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Smiles and snake oil?

Jack Layton all grin and no gravitas, his rivals say

Election 2011

Something about Jack Layton's smile has his rivals grinding their teeth.

Both Stephen Harper and Michael Ignatieff have accused the NDP chief of being all grin and no gravitas.

Ignatieff told a campaign rally in Quebec City Thursday that Layton's policies don't pass muster.

"He has a nice smile, that's true," Ignatieff said. "He has a lovely smile … But no one has put Mr. Layton under a microscope.

"I've been under the microscope for five years. I'm still standing. I'm still happy."
MICHAEL IGNATIEFF

"I've been under a microscope for the last five years."

Harper, too, has gone after "Smilin' Jack."

At a rally in St. Catharines, the Conservative leader warned of a return to the 1970s when the Liberals and NDP joined forces in Ontario to form a coalition government and unseat the Progressive Conservatives.

"It matters very much who is making the big decisions, the big decisions, sometimes tough decisions," Harper said.

"They're not all easy decisions. They're not all smiles and snake oil."

But nothing seems to wipe the grin from Layton's mustachioed face.

Polls suggest the NDP is opening a gap on the Liberals and closing within mere points of the Tories as Monday's vote nears.

Judge rejects bid for fast release of G8 spending report

A Federal Court judge will not hear a case that calls for the auditor general to release her report on G8 spending before Monday's election.

Justice Simon Noel made his ruling Thursday, saying there is not enough time to hear the case.

Toronto's Kathleen Trotter, a 27-year-old personal trainer who is backed by the global online activist group Avaaz, filed the lawsuit in Federal Court this week.

She says Sheila Fraser's refusal to release the report on the G8 legacy infrastructure fund is preventing her from making an informed choice in the federal election.

She claims her charter rights are being violated.

"Plainly, this is urgent," her lawyer, Frank Addario, told the court Wednesday.

Summit chaos

- Sheila Fraser was to have tabled her findings April 5 in Parliament.
- The report analyzed the $1-billion cost of staging last June's G8 summit in cottage country and the gathering of G20 leaders in downtown Toronto.
- The report was put on ice when Prime Minister Stephen Harper's government was defeated.

Earlier this month, a leaked draft copy of Fraser's report said the government had "misinformed" Parliament to get approval for some G8 spending.

Fraser's office has said the report can't be released because Parliament isn't sitting.

A scene of festive chaos

Royal wedding ceremony will offer pomp, circumstance on a grand scale, including a global guest list of 1,900

Each step has been rehearsed, each flower meticulously arranged, the aisle of Westminster Abbey transformed into a flowering green avenue of trees.

As Kate Middleton and best man Prince Harry had a final run-through inside the abbey where she will marry Prince William Friday, a growing throng of curious tourists, dedicated monarchists, souvenir vendors, William-watchers and Harry-hunters turned the Union Jack-bedecked streets outside the iconic landmark into a scene of festive chaos.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing. Not many kings-to-be are going to be married anytime soon," said 26-year-old Sarah White of London, camping out across from the abbey. "Everyone's making friends and are in good spirits — or at least will be until tomorrow."

The only clouds on the horizon: The threat of rain.

Friday's ceremony has been planned like a military operation — which, in part, it is. More than 1,500 soldiers, sailors and air crew will be on ceremonial duty to line the couple's procession route between the abbey and Buckingham Palace.

An additional 5,000 uniformed and undercover police will be alert for threats from Irish dissident terrorists, Muslim extremists, anti-monarchists, royal obsessives and drunken hooligans.

Westminster Abbey itself has been remade into a blooming forest, with six field maples and two hornbeams lining the aisle leading up to the altar.

Britain has not seen a royal celebration on this scale since 1981, when Prince Charles married Lady Diana Spencer at St. Paul's Cathedral.

One more rehearsal before the wedding

Practice makes perfect: Kate Middleton and her bridesmaids, together with best man Prince Harry, rehearsed one more time Thursday at Westminster Abbey, the eve of the most anticipated royal wedding in decades.

But politics intruded on Friday's royal nuptials, with Britain withdrawing its invitation to Syria's ambassador to condemn the violent crackdown on protesters there, which has left hundreds dead.

The rehearsal — the second in as many days — came as Middleton and Prince William released a message in their wedding program, saying they were deeply touched by the outpouring of affection toward them.

"We are both so delighted that you are able to join us in celebrating what we hope will be one of the happiest days of our lives," they wrote. "The affection shown to us by so many people during our engagement has been incredibly moving, and has touched us both deeply."

Canadians like to watch online

Video consumption surges by 37 per cent in past six months Netflix likely to boost numbers

Canadians are the world's most voracious consumers of online video, viewing far more videos, for far longer, than web surfers in other countries, measurement firm comScore reports.

Last month alone, 22.5 million unique Canadian users watched 5.6 billion online videos for 388 million hours of viewing. That averages out to about 251 videos per user and 17.2 hours of viewing.

And those numbers don't account for video streaming through Netflix, which launched in Canada in late September and has amassed 800,000 paying customers.

According to comScore's data for March, about 90 per cent of Canadian Internet users watched some online video last month, compared to 81 per cent in the U.K., 83 per cent in France and 84 per cent in Germany and the United States.

Web users aged two through 24 were extremely engaged, with 94 per cent having watched some online video. Users older than 65 were less likely to have watched online video but by only a few percentage points, at 86 per cent.

ComScore spokesman Andres Palmiter said Friday's royal wedding could turn more web surfers into regular online video watchers.

‘McJobs’ still in hot demand

Fast food isn’t always a low-paying, unstimulating dead end For some people it can offer a real career

JUSTIN SULLIVAN/GETTY IMAGES

▶ McDonald’s teaches team building and deadline discipline.

McDonald’s recent hiring day in Canada saw 20,000 to 25,000 applicants show up for roughly 4,000 jobs across the country, says Len Jillard, senior vice-president, people resources, and chief people officer.

The number far exceeded expectations, Jillard said. “Our target was to have 10,000 applications.”

The Canadian arm of the world’s best-known fast food chain picked up on the idea of a hiring day from south of the border, but Jillard insists it wasn’t because McDonald’s has trouble finding people willing to work.

“We thought that rather than each individual restaurant or operator doing their thing, because we hire 365 days a year ... let’s collectively put our efforts together and create a real awareness around it in terms of what we do offer.”

Fast food jobs have long had a bad rep, but they remain a staple for students with little or no real work experience.

Having McDonald’s on your resumé remains a plus, said Jillard, a former burger flipper himself. (“Sixty per cent of us on the leadership team all started in the restaurant as teenagers.”)

“When they have McDonald’s work experience on their resumé they come to the top of the pile,” he said. “They’re used to working in teams in a high-paced environment.”

Local business award taps UFC president

Top Choice selects Dana White as its 2011 Businessman of the Year

Toronto-based Top Choice Awards declared UFC president Dana White the 2011 Businessman of the Year Thursday.

Top Choice said the award was presented during a press conference at the Direct Energy Centre on the Exhibition grounds because both sides have "crazy busy" schedules.

"Wow! Businessman of the year? Really? It's an honour to accept this award ... it's a real award and it's legitimate. Thank you so much," White said.

As the company's executive face, White has been key in making the UFC one of the fastest growing leagues in the world. Saturday's UFC 129 at the Rogers Centre sold out all 55,000 seats.

"He is a strong man with a unique sense of business, no wonder Canadians chose him ..."
DAVID SILVESTRE

David Silvestre, CEO of Top Choice Media Group, said meeting White was "in many ways a dream come true."

TELEVISION'S SENSORY OVERLOAD

THE METRO LIST

MIKE BENHAIM
METRO

This week, the 3 Rs: Royalty, religion and reality TV

1 Vocal eyes: I took a slight interest in the debut of The Voice this week. Now I have ignited the curiosity that will dictate my whereabouts every Tuesday night for the rest of the season. Damn you, Christina Aguilera!

2 Sensory overload: So here's my new schedule: Monday night is Dancing With The Stars, but I have to tune in Tuesday for the results, right before watching The Voice. Wednesday is American Idol, which has its results air Thursday. During commercials, I check the NHL and NBA playoffs, but under extreme pressure (from my wife) to return quickly for fear of missing one of Bruno Tonioli's golden metaphors that may or may not pertain to dance. To add to my frustration, Rogers' digital PVR does not allow us to record more than two shows at once, and you have to be watching one of them! I CAN'T TAKE THIS PRESSURE! Thank God it's Friday.

3 NBA playoffs: Hey, remember when Canada had two NBA teams? Well, the Vancouver Grizzlies are now in Memphis (and retained the name Grizzlies, which makes no sense, although they may have a grizzly at the Memphis Zoo). The Grizzlies have surprised everyone by going toe-to-toe with the best team in the west, the San Antonio Spurs. Can we have them back now, please?

4 NHL playoffs: My impression of Habs fans this week: "Oh yeah! ... Yes! ... What? Noo!! Wait ... maybe ... Nope. Go Canucks!"

5 Royal wedding: Earlier this week, I saw a show called A Royal Wedding on TLC, where I watched experts speak for 15 minutes about the makings of the "royal cake" for the upcoming royal nuptials. I then proceeded to the royal biker bar to get someone to royally punch me in the head.

6 Miss Fortune: Lindsay Lohan did some time again last week for the jewelry theft that violated her 2007 probation for drunk driving. She was sentenced to 120 days in jail and 480 hours community service, but was released on bail pending an appeal. Her parents were not present since they had tickets to see Charlie Sheen's Torpedo Of Truth show.

7 "So let it be written": Ask anyone who their favourite Bible hero is and Moses and Jesus come a close second to Charlton Heston. Easter weekend is his "royalties Super Bowl" with repeated broadcasts of The Ten Commandments and The Greatest Story Ever Told. It's hard to resist such profound biblical dialogue.

"... to be stripped of spirit, and hope, and strength, only because they are of another race, another creed ... If there is a God, he did not mean this to be so."

It reminds me of a classic George Carlin routine where he offers clarification of the following commandment:

"Thou shalt try real hard not to kill anyone, unless, of course, they pray to a different invisible avenger than the one you pray to."

Good night. I'll be here all weekend.

Worth mentioning

ATHENS. The World Health Organization will give Greek Prime Minister George Papandreou a World No Tobacco Day award for passing anti-smoking legislation in Greece — a country where the new smoking ban is largely ignored.

Papandreou's government introduced the ban last September, outlawing smoking in enclosed public areas in the third attempt by Greek authorities to crack down on smoking in recent years.

Those caught violating the new law face fines of between $74 US and $740, while businesses can be fined between $740 and about $14,800.

But the ban is openly flouted, and people light up freely in bars, cafés and restaurants. Even some public offices are not immune in a country where, according to a European Commission survey published in 2009, 42 per cent of people older than the age of 15 smoke.

WHO spokesman Timothy O'Leary said Thursday the award was one of 36 given out each year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEIRD NEWS

These thieves are extra slippery

No sticky fingers here. These pilferers probably have slippery digits.

The increase in fuel prices has led to an increase in the number of used fryer grease rustlers roaming restaurant alleys in the United States, Reuters reports.

The grease is cleaned and sold for use as biofuel, livestock feed and other products.

An Omaha recycler has filed theft reports with police in Omaha and Lincoln in Nebraska, and Sioux City, Iowa.

Grease thefts have spiked whenever fuel prices skyrocketed during the last four years and this spring is no different, according to Tom Cook, president of the U.S. National Renderers Association.

Processed fryer oil is not trash. It is called yellow grease and traded. Its value is driven by higher prices of gas and ethanol.

"The price (of yellow grease) is real good right now," Cook said. "And those who steal it are really getting a good deal because they're not paying for it."

A predicatable Prom

Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin debate the merits of Prom Teen movie fails to bring anything new, funny or interesting to the big dance

RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Richard Crouse: Mark, first off thanks for the corsage. It was perfect for the Prom screening. And how did you know aqua carnations are my favourite? As for the movie itself, I know it is meant for teens and we're somewhat older than the target audience, but really, I think there is a case to be made to bring the filmmakers up on charges of elder abuse for making us sit through this tedious exercise in youth entertainment. What did you think?

Mark Breslin: Richard, I would have hated this movie even when I was a teen. My objection is not that it was for teenagers, but that it was made for stupid and uncritical teenagers. There have been lots of smart, sly high school movies: Heathers, Mean Girls, Jawbreaker, Easy A. This is NOT one of them. Except for the incredible plot twist revealed halfway through the picture, there would be no reason to see it.

RC: Incredible plot twist? I just saw it and have no idea what you mean. This is as "by the book" as it gets. Anyone who doesn't know how this is going to end by the time the opening credits have played has never seen a movie before. Predictable in the extreme, even the stuff this kind of movie usually gets right, like the comic relief, doesn't bring any relief.

MB: The plot twist is this: One of the girls gets accepted to Parsons School of Design for the following semester, but the letter is clearly dated 2015. That means the entire movie is taking place four years into the future, during which time a group of orthodontists from outer space colonize a high school and replace the students with insipid, dweeby versions of themselves, giving them all perfect teeth in the process. Diabolical! Then they turn the males into '80s teen star clones of Ralph Macchio, Keanu Reeves, John Cusack, etc. Diabolical, I say!

RC: Ha! The only truly diabolical thing about this movie is the script, which makes the old Afternoon Specials seem like Chekov. The characters all seem borrowed from The Breakfast Club only without the special touch that John Hughes brought to his movies.

MB: And I've never seen a bad boy roll over so fast. I don't think a principal can order a student to do extracurricular work.

Plot synopsis

- Nova Prescott (Aimee Teegarden) is an overachieving senior and head of the prom committee. After spending weeks working on decorations for the big night a mysterious fire reduces her hard work to ash. Will the prom go on? Will school rebel Jesse Richter (Thomas McDonell) actually turn out to be a good guy? Will anyone care by the time the credits roll?

▶ Ginnifer Goodwin stars in Something Borrowed.

Goodwin tackles an unsympathetic role

Something Borrowed actress liked the chance to play the antagonist

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

In taking on the lead role of Rachel in Something Borrowed, actress Ginnifer Goodwin found a whole new challenge: making a character sympathetic when you just want to give her a good slap. In the film, Rachel finally makes a move on the man she's loved for years, despite the fact that he's engaged to her best friend (Kate Hudson). The Big Love star sat down with Metro to talk about playing a difficult character and longing to get back to her Shakespearean roots.

What was the draw for you for this character?
I was actually inspired by the challenge of making her sympathetic because, on paper, I don't agree with any of her decisions. I was inspired by the fact that I judge her so harshly, and I wanted to tackle my fears about playing her. I took the part because I wanted to understand girls like her, women like her.

Did your opinion of her change after playing her?
I feel that I can be more sympathetic, though I may not be able to fully say I empathize with her in any way. Ultimately she just makes so many choices that are off of my own moral compass. On paper she's the antagonist, if you step back.

What advice would you give Rachel if you were her friend?
Oh my gosh. "Grow some balls, lady." I mean, it's a difficult situation for Rachel because she's always looked for her self-worth in the attention that she receives from other people. Ultimately I would say to her — but she's not ready for this at the top of the movie — you know, ask for what you want. The worst thing that can happen is you are rejected and you will move on. In the history of the world, no one has ever died of a broken heart.

You have a lot of Shakespeare in your background. Do you have any plans to do more?
Oh, I'd kill to do anything that anyone would let me do. I mean, Shakespeare is my first love and my introduction, really, to theatre. I would do anything to be back on stage performing Shakespeare plays.

Have you had trouble finding time in your schedule for things like that?
That is a consideration, but also I think it's just being taken seriously by the people who put on those kinds of plays can become difficult when you do a lot of film and television. No matter what my training — and I understand why — I think that there's an inherent sort of snobbery there that I respect.

Don’t go calling Bassett a diva

Actress jumped at the chance to play a part not often portrayed on film in Jumping the Broom

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

There are a lot of words that could describe Angela Bassett’s character in Jumping the Broom, a family comedy about two worlds colliding during an elaborate wedding on Martha’s Vineyard. Bassett plays the mother of the bride, a well-heeled, impeccably styled woman of means. Just don’t call her a diva.

“She’s born into money, well-bred, she has a standard,” Bassett says. “Maybe someone else might call her a diva, but I don’t think she characterizes herself as that.”

One of the draws of Jumping the Broom for Bassett was the chance to show a character like hers, as it helps show a part of the African American experience not often portrayed on film.

“My kids’ godparents, they and their family have been to Martha’s Vineyard at least two weeks or one week every summer for the past 18 years,” she says. “There’s a rich history of African Americans in Martha’s Vineyard, working there and then living there.” (The Martha’s Vineyard of the movie is actually Nova Scotia.)

Another big draw for Bassett to take on Jumping the Broom was the fact that she’d be going head to head with Loretta Devine, a longtime friend even though the pair haven’t shared a screen since Waiting to Exhale 16 years ago.

“I know … I mean I think I know what she’s going to bring to the table,” Bassett says of Devine with a smile. “I know it’s going to be delicious, what she brings to the table.”

And the two might be reteaming again sooner rather than later, as talk of a Waiting to Exhale sequel has gone beyond just talk, according to the actresses.

“It’s not in the beginning stages. Probably near the middle, in that there is a script,” Bassett explains. “Forest (Whitaker) is on board to direct it, and it could go. I’d say within a year or something like that.”

Going Green

Different roles. Angela Bassett also stars in Green Lantern, coming out June 15. The experiences of making Green Lantern and Jumping the Broom really couldn’t have been more different, according to Bassett, thanks to the amount of computer effects in the action movie. “You do what you do humanly, but there’s a lot of other stuff that they do elsewhere — CGI or with your stunt double,” she says.

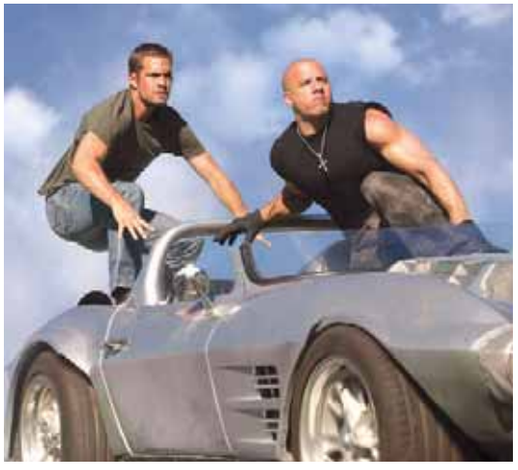
Fast Five is ridiculous, but exciting



Fast Five
Genre: Action
Director: Justin Lin
Stars: Vin Diesel, Paul Walker, Dwayne Johnson
●●½

In any conventional sense, Fast Five is a bad movie. The dialogue is laughable, the plot ridiculous, and the acting is over-the-top. Yet, those qualities are part of what people love about cheesy action movies — and Fast Five definitely delivers for that audience.

The whole thing is ludicrous, but hilariously so and most importantly it never winks at the camera. This is earnest cheese and all the funnier for it. The series' characters are now inexplicably high stakes professional thieves and the movie reunites them for "one last job" with a perpetually greased up and pissed off The Rock in pursuit for the FBI.

Within seconds a bus is flipped and from that point on barely a minute passes without a scene involving a fast car, a scantily clad lady, a gun, an explosion, a one-liner, or all five. It's all big dumb fun paced for the ADD crowd and would be easy to mock were it not so entertaining. The action defies physics and logic and the script sounds like it was written by a monkey, but every scene is either unintentionally hilarious or genuinely exciting. If you have a taste for high-octane trash, Fast Five offers your drug of choice.

Hoodwinked Too! Hood vs. Evil
Genre: Animation
Director: Mike Disa
Stars: Hayden Panettiere, Glenn Close
●●½

In the fairy-tale spoof Hoodwinked Too!, Little Red Riding Hood (Hayden Panettiere) returns as a covert operative assigned to rescue kidnap victims Hansel and Gretel. Where the 2004 original suffered from cut-rate animation, the sequel clearly compensates — it's in 3-D even! However, in spite of cheeky, rapid-fire, pop-culture laced dialogue, the story lacks depth.

STEVE GOW

The Conspirator
Genre: Historical drama
Director: Robert Redford
Stars: James McAvoy, Robin Wright, Kevin Kline
●●●½

This widely unknown story of an accused female co-conspirator in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln sets the stage for meaty revelations about the Civil War era judicial system. Robin Wright makes every gesture count in her moving portrayal of Mary Surratt in whose boarding house John Wilkes Booth and her son hatched their dastardly plot.

ANNE BRODIE

Even The Rain
Genre: Drama
Director: Icíar Bollaín
Stars: Gael García Bernal, Luis Tosar and Juan Carlos Aduviri
●●●●½

For most Canadians, fresh water is a given. Not so in Cochabamba, Bolivia. Even the Rain juxtaposes the real-life conflict in 2000 about the privatization of the city's water supply with the filming a movie about Christopher Columbus' arrival in the New World. Director Icíar Bollaín crafts a powerful film and draws out great performances.

Finished with Big Macs and hunting down Osama Bin Laden, documentary filmmaker Morgan Spurlock will return next week with Pom Wonderful Presents The Greatest Movie Ever Sold.

The handlebar-mustache loving director of Super Size Me takes on the world of advertising this time out and his film is not only a critique of movie product placement, but a hilarious representation of the ever-growing marketing trend itself. Spurlock funded the movie through corporate sponsors (hence the Pom Wonderful branded title) and his film becomes increasingly packed with advertisements as it goes on, including several full on commercial spots.

"I think that if you can make someone laugh, you can make them listen."
MORGAN SPURLOCK

Selling out has never been so open or hilarious.

Metro got a chance to speak with the director gearing up for the film's release. Much like the film itself, it was an odd double-sided experience with the filmmaker openly critiquing marketing, while still trying to promote his own movie.

"Ultimately, what the film boils down to is a real question that we all need to ask ourselves about advertising which is, 'where do we draw the line?'" claimed Spurlock.

"There was a time where there used to be sacred spaces where you could go knowing there would be no advertisements," he said. "I remember a time where I used to be able to excuse myself to the rest room and know that would be a place where there would be no advertising. That was my time, but not anymore."

In his films and even in conversation, Spurlock feels the best way to get across his points is through humour. You could call it the "spoonful of sugar" effect, and it works.

"I think that if you can make someone laugh, you can make them listen," explained the director. "I'd rather be laughing and learning than just being yelled at for two hours. When that starts happening, I shut down. You always have a better chance of reaching an audience with something humourous."

Lindsay Lohan: Acting teacher

Will teach homeless women as part of her court-ordered community service

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES FILE

Lindsay Lohan

Lindsay Lohan may end up spending much of her 360 hours of community service teaching acting to homeless women, according to TMZ. The troubled starlet is set to work at L.A.'s Downtown Women's Center, which also happens to run a theatre workshop.

A spokesperson for the centre said the staff were "extremely interested in having Lindsay contribute her talents."

And according to sources, Lohan herself is up for the idea, believing the workshop would be "a perfect fit for her community service." METRO

A toast to the future king and queen

PETER ROCKWELL

Remembering how stressful my wedding planning was, I can't imagine what it's like organizing the wedding of the century.

While you'd think it would have been enough to drive Wills and Kate to drink, rumour has it "official" festivities are going to be lower alcohol affairs.

I'm not sure if they were concerned about some Harry-led shenanigans or if guests holding pints of ale at their reception wouldn't appear royal enough.

Though my sources at the family-owned champagne house Pol Roger would neither confirm nor deny their participation, word has it that the Pol Roger Réserve Non-Vintage ($55.95 - $62.99) will be the exclusive bubbly.

Floral, lightly nutty and sophisticatedly citrusy the chocie of Pol Roger makes sense because it was Winston Churchill's tipple of choice. Prince William seems to get his sense of the future by reflecting on the past and Pol Roger is a perfect fit. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. Eat like the royals

Wondering what Will and Kate will eat on their first day as husband and wife? Bubble and Squeak, and Scones are some British favourites

BOTH PHOTOS: THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/ MATTHEW MEAD

▶ Bubble and Squeak, and Scones are two traditional British foods.

Traditionally, British cuisine means unfussy dishes made with local ingredients and simple sauces. Although it's recently expanded its reaches, some traditions still stand — like Bubble and Squeak for breakfast or afternoon tea and scones.

Bubble and Squeak

Named for the sound it makes while it's cooking, Bubble and Squeak is a breakfast hash of sorts designed to use leftovers from the previous nights' boiled dinners.

If you don't have leftover veggies, simply boil them until tender.

Preparation:

1. In non-stick skillet cook sausage over medium-high heat for 6 to 8 minutes or until well browned. Using slotted spoon, remove meat from pan and reserve.
2. Add onion to skillet and cook 6 or until translucent and beginning to brown. Add potatoes, cabbage and carrots, and reserved sausage meat. Mix and cook 15 minutes or until well browned, scraping the bottom of the pan occasionally and flipping the mixture over. Season with salt and pepper.

Ingredients:

- 1 lb (500 g) ground sausage meat
- 1 onion, chopped
- 3 baking potatoes, peeled, cooked and mashed
- 1 cup (250 mL) shredded, cooked cabbage
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) chopped cooked carrots
- Salt and pepper

Fruit and Chocolate Scones

Classic to afternoon teas, scones are commonly baked plain or studded with currants, then accompanied with jam and clotted cream, a thick, creamy spread. You can make your version with any dried fruit, such as blueberries, or apricots. You also can add chocolate chips.

Preparation:

1. In large bowl, whisk together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add melted butter and stir until well distributed. Add cream, sour cream and vanilla. Mix until almost combined, then add fruit and nuts and mix until just combined.
2. Turn dough out onto a floured surface. Pat dough into a circle about 3/4 inch (2 cm)) thick and 10 inches (25 cm) round. Cut into 8 wedges and transfer to parchment paper lined baking sheet. Refrigerate until well chilled.
3. Sprinkle tops of the scones with the coarse sugar, if using. Bake in 400 F (200 C) oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Let cool before serving. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/ RECIPES BY ALISON LADMAN

Ingredients:

- 2 3/4 cups (675 mL) all-purpose flour
- 1/3 cup (75 mL) granulated sugar
- 4 tsp (20 mL) baking powder
- 1/4 tsp (1 mL) salt
- 10 tbsp (150 mL) butter, melted
- 1 cup (250 mL) 35% whipping cream
- 1/4 cup (60 mL) sour cream
- 1 tsp (5 mL) vanilla extract
- 1 1/2 cups (375 mL dried fruit, nuts and/or chocolate chips
- Coarse sugar (optional)

Portion Control

Here are some tips to ensure you are eating proper portion sizes.

- Eat smaller meals throughout the day.
- Stay away from high glycaemic foods like sugar. They leave you wanting more.
- When eating out, cut the plate of food in half. Eat half, take the rest to go. NEWS CANADA

THEIR PARENTS HELP PAY FOR THE WEDDING

Contrary to some claims in the media, British taxpayers are not paying for the wedding of the century. The state will be covering the hefty security expenses, but the royals have also agreed to help defray those costs. And while the final tally of who paid for what will never be made public, royal insiders and government officials have indicated that the Queen will pick up the tab for the ceremony and afternoon reception at Buckingham Palace, while Prince Charles will cover the private dinner and dance later in the evening. Kate's self-made millionaire parents are expected to buy their daughter's dress and possibly pay for the honeymoon, among other parts of the big day. This is in sharp contrast to other "common" royal brides, including Sarah Ferguson and Prince Edward's wife, Sophie, whose families reportedly forked over zilch for their big days.

And what of this royal budget? Unlike recent celeb weddings, which have toppled seven figures (we're talking to you $3.5-million bride Chelsea Clinton!), Prince William and Kate's nuptials—minus the cost of security—will likely total six figures. While that seems too rich for our common blood, consider the mind-boggling budgets of these unions: $1.5 million for Catherine Zeta-Jones & Michael Douglas, $2 million for Tom Cruise & Katie Holmes, $3.5 million for Liza Minnelli & David Gest. And those weddings weren't even broadcast to an expected TV audience of 2.5 billion!

THEY WON'T PLAY FAVORITES WITH THEIR KIDS

So, you want to rule England? The prerequisites are pretty clear: You must belong to the Church of England, you can't marry a Catholic, and you must be the first-born son of the current King or Queen—or daughter, but only if no legitimate boys happen to come along subsequently.

Leave it to Prince William and Kate to turn these 300-year-old tenants on their heads! Under current rules, if Prince William and Kate have a girl first, she doesn't automatically become the next Queen of England—if they then have a son, he overtakes his older sis in the line of succession.

But the couple has reportedly initiated steps to prevent such favoritism in their future family. However, it'll require more than just a wave of the Queen's royal scepter. Changing the line of succession must be ratified by the British Parliament—along with all 16 Commonwealth nations where the Queen is officially head of state, such as Canada and Australia.

THEY WASH THEIR OWN DIRTY SOCKS

Shortly after announcing their engagement, Prince Will and Kate made another surprising proclamation: After the wedding, the newlyweds will return home to their Welsh love nest as Will finishes his RAF tour, but without any servants. No servants?! Tsk, tsk. On weekends, they'll head back to London. Royal insiders are predicting they'll call Kensington Palace home, sweet home in the city. Prince William's childhood home, and Diana's residence after her split from Charles, holds a special place in his heart. Though we hear that Kate has her eye not on Di's former digs in the palace, but on Princess Margaret's old apartment within Kensington.

"Kate is the first person who truly understands what it's like to live a normal life. They will be a very contemporary king and queen," says royal scribe Christopher Andersen. "Their courtship and plans for the monarchy," he adds, "are something we've never quite seen before."

Lack of provincial sanction may have deprived Ontario of a homegrown MMA champ, former fighter says

Lost time

COURTESY PETER FRANCHI

▶ Peter Franchi

FERNANDO CARNEIRO
@METRONEWS.CA

The UFC could have had a champion from Ontario years ago — maybe even from Toronto — if mixed martial arts had been legalized sooner in this province, according to a former fighter who says the sport has now passed him by.

Peter Franchi had the last of six professional fights in 2007. He finished with a 2-3-1 record and now works in law enforcement.

"I'm 34 years old. I wish it had been legalized five or 10 years ago," Franchi said. "I would've loved to have been able to do this full time."

Last August, the Ontario government announced it would start sanctioning MMA in 2011. Up until this spring, local fighters had to go out-of-province to compete in MMA and even in kickboxing.

"It was hard to gain enough experience to jump up to the pro ranks," said Franchi, who travelled to Quebec and Indiana to compete.

"My first time was overwhelming," he said. "There were up to 5,000 people in attendance.

"The thing with fighting outside of your own province is you're always the 'alway team.' That means cutting weight in hotel rooms and that's so hard to do."

In 2005, Franchi travelled to Indiana with four other Toronto fighters to compete in a tournament the local promotion dubbed "U.S. vs. Canada."

While all Canadians made weight, four of the Americans didn't and none were tested for performance-enhancing drugs. The Canadians agreed to fight anyways and only Franchi, whose opponent made weight, won his fight.

"They looked bigger than our guys," Franchi recalls. "By regulating it, like Ontario has, it's going to ensure the safety and fairness for all the athletes involved."

With some of the smaller promotions not paying travelling costs, Franchi said fighters often broke even.

"I saw a lot of great talent (leave the sport.) Guys who had talent like GSP (Georges St-Pierre), but didn't have anywhere to showcase their skills or money to travel abroad."

He says he's proud of the Ontario fighters who persevered. Athletes like Sam Stout, Sean Pierson and Mark Hominick, who is competing for the featherweight belt at UFC 129 Saturday.

"We're finally able to see how our hometown boys fight on their own soil," Franchi said. "Look out for the Ontario boys this weekend."

Blue Jays squeeze out win

BLUE JAYS	RANGERS

Corey Patterson dragged the ball into the perfect spot for the Toronto Blue Jays.

Patterson, who two days earlier took a big swing and homered on an 0-2 pitch at his shoulders, bunted home the tiebreaking run in the ninth inning Thursday as Toronto won its first series in three weeks with a 5-2 victory over the AL West-leading Texas Rangers.

"It definitely worked out for us. I wanted to put the bunt in the right location," Patterson said. "I would have been fine even if they would have thrown me out."

Darren Oliver (1-2) fielded the ball but nobody was covering the bag with first baseman Chris Davis charging to also try to get it.

"He bunted it into no man's land," the 40-year-old Oliver said. "I was surprised I got to it."

Patterson was credited with a single and John McDonald, who held at third base until the ball was safely in play, scored the go-ahead run.

"Safety squeeze. (Patterson) did an excellent job. It's one of the things we worked on extensively in spring training," manager John Farrell said. "In that situation, left on left, first and third, good pitcher on the mound who's good on left-handers, Corey did an excellent job with the execution and the placement and a good read by McDonald to score."

The Blue Jays, who took three of four games in the series, then added two more runs when Texas made two errors on the same play.

NO. 1 CAPITALS VERSUS NO. 5 BOLTS

GAME 1: Friday, 7 p.m., TSN
SEASON SERIES: Capitals 4-1-1

CAPITALS WIN IF ...

... they continue their adherence to a decent defensive game. They allowed just eight goals against while taking out the Rangers in five games in the first round.

... Alexander Ovechkin continues to light it up offensively. He had six points, including three goals, in those five games against New York.

LIGHTNING WIN IF ...

... goaltender Dwayne Roloson, 41, continues to defy logic with his youthful acrobatics. He allowed just four goals in Tampa's final three wins over Pittsburgh.

NO. 2. FLYERS VERSUS NO. 3 BRUINS

GAME 1: Saturday, 3 p.m., CBC
SEASON SERIES: Bruins 3-0-1

FLYERS WIN IF ...

... they can settle on one of their three rotating goalies — likely Brian Boucher to start — and he can be adequate enough to hold the spot.

... Chris Pronger, who had surgery in mid-March to fix a broken hand, heals to the point where he can be more than just a presence.

BRUINS WIN IF ...

... they channel their residual frustration from last spring when the Flyers embarrassed them, rallying from three games down to win their second-round playoff series.

NO. 1 CANUCKS VERSUS NO. 5 PREDS

GAME 2: Saturday, 9 p.m., CBC
SEASON SERIES: Tied, two wins each

CANUCKS WIN IF ...

... Roberto Luongo shows he can confidently stop pucks in the post-season.

... Ryan Kesler shows more offensively. He had zero goals against the Blackhawks in seven games.

PREDATORS WIN IF ...

... they get to Luongo. Nashville's offence isn't as skilled as Chicago's but its hard work will produce enough chances to challenge the Canucks' netminder.

NO. 2 SHARKS VERSUS NO. 3 RED WINGS

GAME 1: Friday, 10 p.m., TSN
SEASON SERIES: Sharks 3-1-0

SHARKS WIN IF ...

... Dan Boyle can keep up the pace of playing 27 minutes a game.

... their explosive power play can take advantage of Wings' mediocre penalty killing.

... Goalie Antii Niemi gets back on track. He was pulled twice in the first round and posted a head-shaking .863 save percentage and 3.99 goals-against average.

RED WINGS WIN IF ...

... they take full advantage of a lengthy break with old guys rested and healed without getting rusty.

... Pavel Datsyuk and Henrik Zetterberg play like Datsyuk and Zetterberg.

... Jimmy Howard continues strong play in net.

Closer to the Hart

Vancouver Canucks left-winger Daniel Sedin will go for an unprecedented family double at the NHL awards banquet June 22.

Sedin, right-winger Corey Perry of the Anaheim Ducks and Tampa Bay Lightning right-winger Martin St. Louis were named finalists for the Hart Trophy Thursday.

Sedin's twin brother and linemate Henrik Sedin won the MVP award last year. They could become the first brother tandem to win the Hart in consecutive years.

"It's exciting for us," said Daniel Sedin.

"Last year was kind of neat.

"We never expected any of us to be up there, to be mentioned with those kind of players. To do it back-to-back is obviously nice. But it's something to look back at after our careers."

Daniel Sedin also had nothing but praise for Perry and St. Louis.

"They're both great players and mean a lot to their teams," he said.

▶ Georges St-Pierre thwarts a simulated knife attack while working out in the octagon Thursday in Toronto.

St-Pierre ready for anything in cage

‘I consider Jake Shields like a champion,’ GSP says of UFC 129 opponent

It appears UFC welterweight champion Georges (GSP) St-Pierre will have no problem if challenger Jake Shields enters the cage with a knife Saturday night.

Looking to have a little fun, Montreal’s St-Pierre showed off his self-defence techniques at a media workout Thursday.

His coach, Firas Zahabi, wearing a hoodie and sunglasses, simulated a knife attack on the champion in the cage. St-Pierre disarmed him with a few well-placed punches and kicks, before putting him on the mat.

“It was fun. It was just to amuse the crowd,” St-Pierre, 29, told reporters.

He also showed off his fighting background with a karate kata series of moves.

St-Pierre (21-2) and Shields (26-4-1) will face off Saturday night before 55,000 at the Rogers Centre at UFC 129.

Shields, who has only fought once in the UFC, is on a 15-fight winning streak dating back to 2005.

St-Pierre has won his last eight and hasn’t lost a round since August 2007.

“We’re both dealing with issues,” said the 32-year-old Shields. “I’m dealing with being in hostile territory but he’s dealing with just tremendous amounts of pressure right now so I think it kind of evens out.”

It’s a matchup St-Pierre has been looking forward to for a long time.

“I don’t dislike Jake. He’s one of the fighters I admire the most, as a matter of fact. He’s one of the guys that I’ve wanted to fight for a long time,” he said. “As a real champion, I want to fight the best guy ... He’s had five titles in different organizations, in different weight classes, which I have never done before. And I want to be the one to stop Jake Shields.”

Living in a Russian dream

FIELD OF PLAY

SCOTT RUSSELL
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

Before he went out and nailed his short program, Canadian figure skater Patrick Chan made an observation about his presence in Moscow.

"It all feels a bit unreal," Chan said. "Like we're living in a dream."

Indeed it does feel unreal, but in a very good way.

Walking to the magnificent Ice Palace, which houses the world figure skating championships, one encounters the faithful who arrive from all parts of the gigantic city on foot. There are actually scalpers outside the building hawking tickets for the best seats in the house. Women of all ages are elegantly dressed and men wear suits and ties to watch the action rinkside.

There is pomp and ceremony on and off the ice. It all seems to make sense in a place where figure skating is a beloved part of heritage.

World and Olympic champions populate the grandstand. Each is treated with a reverence reserved for treasured artifacts of the national folklore.

In the midst of it all, Vladimir Putin, the wildly popular prime minister of Russia, speaks to the fans.

"We are so proud to host this beautiful and challenging sport and the world championships," Putin declares.

It is widely known that the leader himself was at least partly behind the effort to have Russia take the torch from the failing hands of the Japanese, who couldn't host in the face of last month's natural disasters.

"We know more than anyone else what this kind of calamity means," Putin acknowledged, referring to the Chornobyl nuclear disaster of 1986.

When the Russian pair of Tatiana Volosozhar and Maxim Trankov compete there is genuine adulation and the fervent hope that they indeed might be the next in a long line of greats who have given this discipline so much history here.

The crowd is not disappointed and one can detect an emotional investment made in the young duo made by everyone in attendance.

Evgeni Pluschenko, the great world champion, is in the building to watch Chan skate the lights out and even he cannot fail to recognize the brilliance of another competitor from another country that also loves skating.

Not long after, Putin declares the championships officially open.

"So many people here have turned this sport into a genuine art form," Putin says.

He means it and that's why Russia is the fitting host of a skating summit that almost never happened.

It's also why Chan is aware of something very real.

That he is in the process of becoming the champion in a place where his sport has tremendous mystique and is held extremely close to the heart.

DEVELOPMENT OF MEMORY IN CHILDREN
IS YOUR CHILD BETWEEN THE AGES OF 7 AND 16?

We invite you to participate in our study on Children's Memory Development. This study looks at thinking abilities affecting children's memory and how they relate to a child's age.
The study involves two 2-hour sessions and will take place in our lab at York University or another convenient location.
We will compensate you for your time and travel expenses, and children will receive a token of appreciation. Older children will also receive a certificate for volunteer hours. You will also receive a brief report of your child's performance on the tasks.

For further information or to volunteer for the study, contact Lila Elkhadem, M.A.,
